Elsie's Little Miracle

By Anna Steese Richardson

Copyright, 1906, by May McKeon

It was pretty generally understood that the Billy Daltons were drifting apart. There was no particular reason for this state of affairs, save the lack of something better to do.

You see, they had just enough money so that Billy did not have to work nor Janet to worry about making both ends meet. They had danced their way through several seasons into a lazy, good humored and comrade-like engagethat Billy had continued to lead cotillons and Janet to dance them, but generally with other partners.

Matters between them had reached the town marshal"the point where the rumor laden society papers had suggested covertly that when Billy went to England and Scotular to do, Janet would probably take as if it had found anchorage. -up her home in Nevada or South Dakota, there to remain until Norman Stanley returned from Africa, where hurry along home with it before it behe was fighting ennui by hunting big game. It was even whispered that Billy Dalton had insinuated to Stanley that it was rather better taste to stalk big game than another man's wife, especially when the other man was perfeetly willing to make it clear sailing for his wife if it would make her any happier.

Of course, this sounds a bit strong on paper, particularly to the old fashioned folk who still believe that marriage is a contract for life and not a mere episode. In the set to which the Billy Daltons belonged the situation was accepted as a matter of course, and when Janet asked a lot of people down to their Long Island place for the automobile races and the week end no one thought of refusing just because the Daltons might separate within a fortnight after the gathering.

Such was the situation when the Dalton car broke down on the Jericho turnpike, and its occupants-Janet, Mrs. Greenwalt, Joe Jeffreys and "Marsh" Huntoon-decided to cut through the woods to the Dalton place and leave the car for a farmer to guard until the mechanic who handled the Dalton garage could be dispatched to and listened to a sound that was not of the woods, but of the nursery-the plaintive wail of a child. Janet it was who found it-a bit of white faced, staring eyed humanity rolled up snugly in a great shawl of Iceland wool.

While she held the baby in her arms and tried to silence its wails with uncertain and awkward little pettings the quartet held a conference. The child was too young to have walked there. Mrs. Greenwalt said it was not a day over two months old. It was too far from the road to be heard by passing travelers. Ah-there was the answer, a wisp of paper tied to the end of the shawl:

"Please take care of little Elsie. It was not her fault that she came into the world, and I can do no more."

"I've always said that the government ought to regulate the question of marriage among the poor," remarked ment, thence into matrimony. After Mrs. Greenwalt severely. "Here is a case in point."

"You are jumping at conclusions," said Huntoon dryly. "Let's take it to

"And what then?" asked Janet without lifting her gaze from the child's face. The baby had clutched her finland, where he had nothing in partic- ger with its tiny fist and settled down

"Oh, there are asylums and homes for youngsters like this. You'd better gins to howl. One of your men can take it to town before dark. Shall I carry the little beggar for you?"

"Oh, no. She's not a bit heavy, and she is quiet now. She might cry if we changed her position."

They trudged on through rustling eaves and soft Indian summer haze, three of the party chatting gayly; two, the young wife and the baby, looking nto each other's eyes as if searching 'or a new key to the problem of life. Sometimes Janet wished that the child would close its eyes. She did not like to meet that trustful, clear eyed gaze.

"Have you disposed of the youngster?" asked "Marsh" Huntoon as they sat down to dinner that night.

Janet started and looked across the table at her husband. He lifted his yebrows inquiringly.

Huntoon's good humored laugh broke he awkward silence. "What? Don't you know that our party was increased by one during our

One frosty December afternoon Dal-

Janet wanted him! He thought he had not cared. Now he snew that he had cared all along. But it was characteristic he did not express his fierce joy in words. He held Janet very close and whispered:

Trade Signs.

On nearly all street corners even in the largest metropolis of Europe may be found relics of the middle ages and of the earliest times. Take, for instance, the wooden image of a shoe, which every cobbler hangs out above his door. It goes back for its origin to the Rome of the pre-Christian era. In the ruins of the lava buried cities of Herculaneum and Pompeii many shop signs of stone and terra cotta have been discovered, the forerunners of those that for centuries adorned the highways not only of Europe, but of the new world. Among them was the emblem of the shoemaker's trade, a Cupid carrying a dainty pair of women's shoes. But the Romans did not stop there. They used the image of n goat to indicate the dairies, that of a mule driving a mill to point out the bakers' shops and a bush of evergreen to direct the thirsty traveler to a tavern. This particular sign gave rise to the English proverb, "Good wine needs

The Turk and Es Toilet. Though the dress of the Turk is elaborate, he is most fastidious when it comes to questions of dress. He gives one hour or more to the adorning of his mustache. It is no mean task to change it from flaxen to jet black, perfume it with rose and amber and soothe the straggling ends. Another hour is given to the dyeing of his lips and the caring for his eyelids and another in practicing his most fascinating smile. He gives the same attention to his wearing apparel. It is of finest broadcloth or velvet and covered with embroidery of neavy gold. His arms and chest are left bare to show the splendid polish of his ebony skin. Grace is added by his capote, draped with great chic. But this splendor would be nothing without a sword with gilt handle, a watch with concealed miniature, a tobacco pouch of knitted gold and a pistol often studded with precious stones.-Chicago

Are Patent Medicines Frauds?

We are often asked the above question, and our answer has invariably been that no medicine that gives satisfactory results could be fraudulent. We could not afford to sell fraudulent medicines. Our business depends on pleased customers-in fact any business does. Therefore, we would take an enormous risk did we not fulfil every promise made our customers. We are very careful of what we guarantee, and when we do guarantee an article we must know it pretty wellwhat it contains and how it is made. We have in mind the Rexall line of remedies, particularly Rexall Mucu-Tone, of which we are selling large quantities at this time of the year. Mucu-Tone is one article that we can recommend over our counter and know that ninety-eight per cent. of its purchasers are going to be benefited and will return to our store pleased customers. Mucu-Tone is a positive cure for internal scrofula or what is commonly called Catarrh. It is without a doubt the peer of all tonics for any one who is suffering from a run-down condition, can't work, feels constantly tired or suffering from the more plainly described symptoms of Catarrh—such as stopping of the nose, cold in the head or bad cough."

It must be remembered that Catarrh is not confined to the nose and throat. It usually starts there, but it leads more often to serious trouble, particularly the wasting of tissues, as in the case of little Miss Dillon, of Albany. Here is a letter from her father:

"My little girl had catarrh so badly that the disease had begun to eat into the cartilage of the nose. Snuffs and instruments failed to do more than give temporary relief. I saw the advertisements of Rexall Mucu-Tone. but I could not believe that anything taken in the stomach could cure the sore membranes of the nose. However, I took advantage of your free trial offer and my girl began taking your remedy according to directions. I want to say right here that Mucu-Tone is certainly the greatest medical discovery of the times, and to thank you for the liberal offer that first induced me to give it a trial. Muco-Tone has cured my daughter's catarrn completely. The discharge has stopped altogether, and her breath is as sweet as can be. Again thanking you, MATT. DILLON, 24 N. Swan St.,

Albany, N. Y.". We are selling a large trial bottle of Mucu-Tone for fifty cents on the famous Rexall guarantee of your money back if you are not satisfied. We promise that one bottle will put flesh on your bones and bring new vitality to your

"Did you ever? That bonnet was old fashioned when Noah went into the ark," Miss Althea Evans said, nodding toward the new girl in the choir.

Isabella Strange, her chum and rival in Eastwood society, giggled and answered loud enough for the new girl to hear: "You are shockingly ignorant, Leathy. Don't you know there are people who take pride in their an-

Involuntarily, it seemed, the new girl drooped to touch masses of bright waving hair. The plume was not draggled; nothing, indeed, about the hat showed a touch of wear. But it was at least three seasons behind the style, also very becoming to the wearer. She was slim and tall, with sherry wine eyes and a creamy, rose tinted complexion In the lips the roses burned to clear scarlet, and there was an adorable dimple lurking at one side. Dark brows, delicately arched, gave an accent to the face, an accent repeated by the gold lights of the abundant brown hair. Thus nature explained the situation. A girl who looked that way could afford to be old fashioned, and two other girls, enormously stylish, but with no looks to boast, could not help but be ill na-

"As you will, Miss Evans," Benson ed on the promise. And it is much to me that the music shall be even."

"I dare say, but I shan't sing except when I feel like it," Althea said, with a touch of insolence. Her father was head of the vestry.

"Really, this-this is beyond endurance," Althea begun.

Isabella laughed low and unpleasantly and put her hand over Althea's lips. Then she called to the choir master, who had moved a little way off: "Why don't you try Miss Archer?" nodding toward the new girl. "I'm sure she looks musical-she may be an artist." . Miss Archer smiled daintily, saying: "Oh, thank you. I should like to sing. I love it and have been silent ever since I came—the walls are so thin at Mrs. Wray's, and I should so hate to disturb any one."

"You! What will you care for?" Benson asked, seating himself at the small organ. The girl bent her head softly, saying: "Something old and simple. Something my mother sang, please. Say 'Rock of Ages' or 'Coronation.' "

"I'm going. I hate all that old rubbish," Althea said, marching toward the door.

Isabella followed her, but paused, her hand on the knob, to say with a giggle, as though speaking to some one still in the room: "You'd better put up a sign outside, 'Antiques to Be Seen and Heard Here!" Then she ran down the steps laughing loudly, and as she overtook Althea caught her arm, shook her gayly and said: "I think we have settled Miss Archer. If she has any sense at all she won't come againafter this."

Whether or no Miss Archer had sense she certainly had a voice. She alsoand this was the crown of poor Benson's joy-knew mighty well how to use it. Althea's special friends were delayed; therefore she in turn delayed her return to the choir. She had no doubt whatever that Benson would take her, notwithstanding she admitted that she and Isabella had been foolish. "But put her hand up to the plume which how could we dream things would turn out so?" Althea asked of Isabella, who in turn queried:

> "Who would have thought Benson could do without you? And does he think he can keep on doing without, you when they have the service of

"Of course he can't," Althea said, almost tearfully, "because the thanks are mostly for Cousin Rob, and everybody knows he won't care for anything except to hear me sing."

Cousin Rob was, understand, a lieutenant in the navy, for whose escape from typhoon and other perils Eastwood felt called upon to give especial thanks. There were other Eastwood men, but they had not been mentioned in dispatches for cool and reckless bravery. Moreover, they had not been from Lexington. New tobacpromoted. The result was when the servwill never get the heart. Your sing- ice of thanks came on there were several surprises, but, if truth must told, some severe disappointments, for Althea sang the solo and in the anthem, and Miss Archer was no more than a chorister. She subdued her voice admirably and kept in the background as much as she might, yet her name ran all about from lip to lip, so it was not perhaps through occult divination that Lieutenant Robert Starling waited outside the choir loft stair, with at least fifty of his enthusiastic townsmen hanging behind, to see the reason of his

"As if that mattered, as if anything mattered, except that we love each other," Lieutenant Starling said. "You do love me, Nora, darling?"

"I ought not to. It will break the town's heart to have you marry me," Elinor responded. "But I'm mightily afraid that I do."

The Dawn of Conscience.

The development of conscience has been interestingly traced in the career of a deaf mute who for many years was quite uneducated. He thought in pictures and had mental words for only the fewest things. He had no sense of right and wrong. Being often hungry, he stole food-that is to say, he found and took it, not then knowing that it was an offense to do so. Small sums of money he made his own in the same way, and again he saw no wrong. But one day he took from a butcher's counter a piece of money which turned out to be gold. He went her at all, the soul of graciousness, but into a shop to buy sweets with it, but when he realized the value of the coin he snatched it up and ran away. He was horrified, not at the theft, but the extent of it. In the end he buried the piece and from that time stole no more. The shock had quickened conscience into life, and he needed little "confore they bred theories. Nobody really verting" when kindly instructors at knew more of Miss Archer than that last took him in hand .- St. James' Ga-

Woman's Trials.

The bitter trail in a woman's life is to be childless. Who can tell how hard the struggle may have been ere she learnt to resign herself to her lonely lot? The absence of this link to bind marital life together, the absence of this one pledge to mutual affection is a common disap-pointment. Many unfortunate couples become estranged thereby. Even if they do not drift apart, one may read the whole extent of their disappointment in the eyes of such a children of others. To them the largest family does not seem too numerous.

In many cases of barrenness or child-lessness the obstacle to child-bearing is easily removed by the cure of weakness on the part of the woman. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been the means of restoring health and fruitfulness to many a barren woman, to the great joy of the household. In other, but rare cases, the obstruction to the bearing of children has been found to be of a surgical character, but easily removable by painless operative treatment at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute. Buffalo, N. Y., over which Dr. Pierce of the "Favorite Prescription" fame, presides. In all cases where a file fame presides. In all cases where children are desired and are absent, an effort should be made to find out the real cause since it is generally so easily removed by proper treatment. In all the various weaknesses, displace ments, prolapsus, inflummation and de-bilitating, catarrhal drains and in all cases of nervousness and debility, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the most efficient remedy that can possibly be used. It has to its credit hundreds of thousands of cures—more in fact than any other remedy put up for sale through druggists, especially for woman's use. The ingredients of which the "Favorite Prescription" is composed have received the most positive endorsement from the leading medical writers on Materia Medica of all the several schools of practice. All the ingredients are printed in plain English on the wrapper enclosing the bottle, so that any woman making use of this that any woman making use of this famous medicine may know exactly what she is taking. ### wettenham's Blunder.

Gov. Swettenham, of Jamaica, has olundered again. This is said advisedy, for his record in the British Colonial service shows several mistakes serious enough to cause his transfer from one position to another, each time to one less important. He began official life as colonial secretary at Singapore, then was made governor of the Strait's time was designated "promotion," the fact remains that there was trouble sufficiently serious to interfere with future usefulness.

Gov. Swettenham's blunder at Kingston seems to have resulted from chagrin that American warships should be the first to come to the city's relief and from lack of tact in dealing with Americans engaged in work ashore. There was certainly no cause for chagrin, because the American ships happened to be in neighboring waters; the Americans were not responsible for the failure of British ships to arrive sooner. As to lack of tact, in emergencies official red tape is always cut short, and effort is directed toward largest results. If the Americans happened to accomplish more than others, they were better directed and more skilled at the work in hand. The governor ought to have appreciated these

To put the matter in another way, Gov. Swettenham failed to appreciate the superior rights of humanity in the caiamity which befell Kingston. In that calamity, the governor was only a co-laborer with all others engaged in burying the dead, caring for the injured, and sheltering and feeding the destitute. He was entitled to such consideration only, as courtesy might light. He did not rise to the importance of the occasion. Some men never do. They are not big enough. They prolong the lack of confidence of the have constantly to be "promoted" to find places to fit them.

The Whole Truth.

It has been demonstrated in more than a dozen towns in our State that a Business Men's Club is to a town what good financiers are to a financial institution—the whole life of it.

We cite you to several of our neigh. boring cities that owe their present prosperity and growth to the energetic nen who reside in them. Those men considered home interest first and went. to work and have accomplished much settlement, when he was transferred for their respective cities. The same to British Guinea and thence to opportunity presents itself in Paris, Jamaica. While his transfer each and we feel assured good results would result from such a club here, but our business men think otherwise and, therefore. Paris will always be found "sucking the hind teat."

To Gag the Press.

By a vote of 32 to 13, the upper branch of the New York Legislature has empowered its clerk "to expel from the privileges of the floor," any press representative who might transcend the limits of what any member might regard as undeservd criticism. This action was taken as the result of newspaper protest against efforts to emasculate the bill prepared by Gov. Hughes, as counsel for the Armstrong Insurance Investigating committee, to remedy the insurance evils discovered by that investigation. Thus it is an attempt by the insurance companies and allied interests, to throttle through their subservient senatorial tools, public exposure of efforts to prevent the application of remedies prescribed by the people's expert. The insurance companies would now gag the press to prevent the public learning of more of their crookedness.

It was pretty tough on the insurance companies to have all their short-comings uncovered by investigation, published to the world. It cost them millions of dollars of business, and their losses are not ended yet. It is a very dictate. He did not see things in this shot-sighted policy, however, which now prompts them to gag the press, for nothing could have tended more to public. If their obeccions to proposed legislation are just, the people will be the first to see the justice of them; if they are not well founded, all the gags It is revorted that the Japanese Am- in the world will not prevent the press bassador, Viscount Aoki, recently ad- from exposing to the limit both com-

By FRANK H. SWEET

HERE was unmistakable excitement on board the eastbound train that morning. It began on the platform when three utors. tume arrived and carefully superintended the removal of their baggage to the train. Two of them had theirs consigned to the express car. The third 'lowed he wouldn't bother nobody and even refused assistance in transferring his heavy, blanket bound packages to the seat he was to occupy. After the train started there was glancing back over shoulders to see if the miners were in sight, and, if they were not, men rose carelessly and walked backward or forward through (Dr. J. T. McMillan's Old Stand.) the cars until they found the objects of their search and seats as near to W. K. DUDLEY, them as possible.

Strolling about the platform had been two men who appeared to take little interest in what was going on around them. Nevertheless, on the appearance of the miners they had exchanged significant glances and theu had walked nonchalantly in opposite directions. When the conductor came through to collect tickets, ten minutes after the train started, one of them was seated directly behind one of the miners, while the other was on the opposite side of the car, behind the man who had refused to be parted from his their long white fingers the conductor scowled and glanced sharply at them and the miner in front and then shook his head grimly, as though it were no business of his.

"From Klondike, I suppose, strangers?" called a voice from some indeterminate point in front.

"With your piles, of course?" jocoseiv added another.

This brought a general laugh. "Do you mind telling us something about the place?" insinuated a third. "Is there as much gold as the papers lead us to believe?" "What sort of winters do you have?" "Is there any big game?" in quick succession from various points.

The two men, who had consigned their baggage to the express car, looked about and nodded good naturedly.

"Yes; we're from Klondike," one of them answered, "me and my partner here. But we didn't bring our pile. That's back in our claim under ten feet of snow and ice. We're going for It just as soon's the weather opens in

"Has your friend done as well as you and your partner?" asked a passenger, nodding toward the third miner, a little, sallow faced man who seemed anxious to conceal himself behind his baggage.

"Him? S'pose you ask and see. reckon mebbe he can talk, if he don't say much.

That's what roused me to go west. Now we'll buy the Hunter place an' build a new house with four rooms-four rooms," lowering his voice a little and looking about

"But that will only take a very small part of your money," suggested the drummer. "What will you do with all the rest?"

"Put it aside," answered Georgia promptly. "None o' my fambly ever had any money put aside.'

"You must have a pile," remarked a portly man, glancing a little enviously at the bulky packages and at the same time comparing his own comfortable need for money and appreciation of it with this backwoodsman's evident primitiveness.

"A pile! Yes, sir; that's what I keep a-sayin' over to myself," agreed Georgia. "I reckon there'll be enough for baggage. As he took the tickets from all of us. None o' my fambly 'll ever need any more."

> All this time the two recipients of the conductor's scowl had been apparent uninterested spectators of what tiently upon his window, and the other had fumbled with his newspaper. But even in their indifference they had observed that the two miners who sat together were strong, keen eyed, resolute men, apparently able to hold their own in all sorts of vicissitudes, while the man from Georgia was simple, unsophisticated and in possession of all his baggage.

Presently another significant look was exchanged, and the one who had been tapping upon the window rose carelessly and crossed over to him of the newspaper.

"Is this seat engaged?" he asked. "No," removing a valise from the seat to the floor and then folding his newspaper as a preliminary to conversation.

"Going far?" "To Georgia."

"Really?" in feigned surprise. "Why. I'm going there myself."

The miner in front turned eagerly and gazed into their faces, but apparently they did not notice him. "Most inquisitive set of people in this ear I ever met," one of them remarked. "Yes, anything but boring strangers with questions, I say." Georgia turned away, but his ears emained vigilant. At length on one of his rounds through the car the conductor stopped beside the two men whose fingers were noticeably long and white and nerv-

"I believe your tickets ran out at the ast station?" he said inquiringly.

"Yes, but we've changed our minds," one of them answered easily. "Last night I ran across this man, an old friend of mine whom I hadn't seen in wenty years. Now we're going on together for a visit to our old home in Georgia. We'll pay the difference." "H'm!" the conductor said coldly.

Where to?" "Breshtown, Ga."

The miner whirled with his mouth open and his eyes bulging in eagerness. As soon as the conductor moved way he blurted out:

"Doggone it, stranger, that's my place. Who mout you be?" "Smith and Robinson. My name's liality that delighted his simple heart. At last, as the shadows began to larken in the car, the train slowed up it a small unpainted building which a brakeman introduced to the passengers s Breshtown.

The men helped Georgia off with his paggage and then piloted him to a earriage which they had telegraphed thead to have in readiness. He lived tix miles from the station, he had told hem, and had frankly added that the way led through a wild, almost uninlabited forest. At this their eyes had orightened hopefully, and they had asjured him that it would be unnecessary for him to order a carriage. Theirs would be large enough for all three,

"Oh, well, just as you like," said the man indifferently. "We'll kill you and then take the money. It's all the same to us. You can't help yourself."

Georgia turned white and glanced appealingly from one to the other. They were calm, smiling, but implaca-Slowly he unbuckled the belt from his waist and passed it to one of them. There is more Catairh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pro-nounced it a local disease and prescribe local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Onio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a tea-spoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circular and testimonials. Address:

«COME TO THE Texas Panhandle!

Hundreds and Thousands of Men are Making Fortunes in the opening and Development of this Wonderful, Rich New Country.

Don't you want some of this money? You can share in it if you will. We run a big excursion to Stratford, County Seat of Sherman County, Texas, the first and third Tuesdays of every month. Next one goes Tuesday, January 15. You can for a small expense, go along and see this great Panhandle for yourself. We will show you splendid money-making opportunit es for either investment or a home. The money is there for you to make. The railroads give-you a low rate. We do all we can to help you get it. But it all depends on whether you go to see it or not. So it is "up to you." If you go we will offer you the best money-making opportunities you

The soil is deep and rich. The surface is level and unbroken. Settlers who go there now will be wealthy men in a few years. You will see crops that will amaze you. You can get absolutely reliable information from the farmers and others who live there. The climate is ideal, winter and summer. Free from malaria, rheumatism, bronchial, catarrh and lung troubles This land is bound to double in price in a very short time. It makes rom 75 to 100 per cent. profit on present prices, either in small grain or stock-raising If you want to share in the big profits being made in the opening and development of this grand new country, go NOW. Make up your mind to-day that you will go next week and see it for yourself.
